Brian GAUDET

Builder – Football and Wrestling

Brian Gaudet's many contributions to sport have been guided by the principles of commitment, integrity, and determination. A distinguished athlete himself, Brian has spent much of his adult life inspiring and supporting young athletes. He has made an immense contribution to the development and promotion of minor and high school sports, including 25 years in wrestling and more than 35 in football. He served as head wrestling coach at several local high schools, coaching athletes to success at the provincial and national level. He was also a well-respected and active official with Wrestling Canada Lutte (formerly the Canadian Amateur Wrestling Association), officiating at 38 national championships at the junior, senior, and university levels. One of his greatest contributions to sport came through his nearly two decades of work as a doping control officer with the Canadian Centre for Ethics in Sport. Brian worked in this capacity at the international level, serving at the 2010 Olympic Games in Vancouver, BC, as well as at several world championships for various sports. Brian has demonstrated a lifelong commitment and passion to helping athletes develop to their full potential. His mentorship and commitment to excellence inspired athletes to success both in sport and in other aspects of their lives.
