Athlete - Short Track Speed Skating

Courtney Sarault's accomplishments in short track speed skating are legendary in New Brunswick. She represented the province at the Canada Games in 2015 at age 14 and, while still of junior age, began competing at the senior level, capturing her first World Cup medal going head-to-head against former Olympians. She continues to hold the provincial records at all distances and is a Canadian record holder in the 1000m. She became the first Canadian woman outside of Quebec to become Vice-World Champion at the senior level and the first woman from New Brunswick – and only the 10th skater in the country outside of Quebec – to be named to the Canadian Olympic short track team. In her Olympic debut at the 2022 Olympics in Beijing, Courtney assisted her teammates to two team finals. The 2021 recipient of the Nathalie Lambert Award for Short Track Female Athlete of the Year, she maintains contact with her old club, the Codiac Cyclones in Dieppe, and continues to encourage young Maritime speed skaters to dream big. She is an outstanding ambassador for Moncton and New Brunswick on the world stage.
